Title of event
Integrated Neighbourhood Approach to Urban Planning and Management

Organization Details
Organization: United Nations Environment Programme
Organization Country: Paris, France

Summary
The overarching aim of this training event is to introduce the integrated systems approach to urban planning and management (or integrated neighbourhood approach). During the session, participants will learn about the approach and the different actions already in place for cities to commit to ambitious action on efficient, well planned and connected urban systems.

From this session, participants will gain a better understanding of:

- How systems approaches can help build towards, energy, resource efficiency, and sustainable urban development climate issues.
- How having an integrated neighbourhood and community-based approach could help conserve and perpetuate traditional, low-carbon, and energy-efficient technologies.
- How to develop guidelines for integrated neighbourhood planning
